Conjuring Moments in African American Literature

Author: Kameelah L. Martin | Category: Literary Conjure & Womanism

Overview & Sanctuary Summary:
Exploring women, spirit work, and Hoodoo traditions represented throughout Black literature.

Kameelah Martin explores how African American women writers (Zora Neale Hurston, Toni Morrison, Gloria Naylor, Alice Walker) preserved Hoodoo as a subversive technology of healing and liberation.

Core Literary Insights:

• The Conjure Woman as Sacred Archetype: Healer, midwife, keeper of generational memory, and boundary defender.

• Storytelling as Spellcraft: Words written in rhythm carry the power to awaken forgotten spiritual inheritances.
