Orishas, Goddesses, and Voodoo Queens

Author: Lilith Dorsey | Category: Vodou & Orisha Traditions

Overview & Sanctuary Summary:
Honoring the divine feminine, sacred spirits, and Lwa across African diasporic traditions with rituals, offerings, and prayers.

A celebration of fierce, compassionate, and transformative female deities, spirit queens, and matriarchal leaders in African and African diasporic religions.

Sacred Divine Feminine Archetypes:

• Oshun: Orisha of sweet waters, fertility, gold, love, self-respect, and sacred sensuality. Teaching us that beauty and joy are acts of resistance.

• Yemoja: The great Mother of the Ocean, guardian of children, emotional healing, and maternal comfort.

• Erzulie Freda & Erzulie Dantor: Vodou Lwa of refined love and fierce maternal protection. Dantor holds the dagger to defend survivors and children.

• Marie Laveau: The legendary Voodoo Queen of New Orleans, community organizer, healer, and spiritual sovereign.
